Collectively, the grades 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th are usually considered high school and may be referred to as secondary school or senior secondary school. They are called as follows: * 9th grade - Freshman (1st year of high school) * 10th grade - Sophomore (2nd year of high school). 11th grade - Junior (3rd year of high school, 1st year in IBDP programme for those taking IB). 12th grade - Senior (4th year of high school, 2nd year in IBDP programme for those taking IB). Hopefully that helps. 2.9K views

You need to show excellence and either improvement or consistency in your quality. I recommend that Everyone apply to at least one college Early (by the end of October of your senior year). Given that most students apply to college before receiving any Grade 12 grades, what is there if we omit 9, 10, and 11? Generally, the more recent grades count more than the earlier ones. Also, if there's a reason for poor grades, a person writing you a recommendation should address that. But of your high school grades aren't pretty solid, a school will want to know why, or know why they should otherwise admit you. 6.1K views
