BeatleToons, The Real Story Behind The Cartoon Beatles Full eBook,

After Krazy Kat, Campbell went on to direct many installments of The Beatles television series for King Features. The show debuted on 25 September 1965, and remained number one in the ratings for the duration of its four-year run. He later wrote the foreword to the book Beatletoons: The Real Story Behind The Cartoon Beatles,<sup>[3]</sup> where his involvement in the show is also talked about extensively. Ron's surname is misspelled as "CAMBELL" at the end credits of "Cool McCool". Due in part to the enormous success of the program, Campbell was hired by Bill Hanna (of Hanna-Barbera fame) and relocated to Mitch Axelrod - Author Beatletoons is the ONLY book ever written about the old Beatles cartoon series that premiered on ABC-TV... "The Beatle Cartoon cell is one of one. I got it from a old client from my dad who worked for the production company for the cartoon series. This was the go to commercial artwork they made just for the show. Going by the hand background also looks like it was made to match the cell. beatleToonsthe real story behindThe cartoon beatleS featuring Mitch Alexrod, an authority of everything Beatles and Tony Tragurdo host of including the Beatles Saturday morning cartoon series, which made a huge splash in the mid-60's, inspired the 1967 animated feature, Yellow Submarine, then disappeared into virtual obscurity for more than thirty years. Axelrod's enthusiasm for the Beatles cartoon jumps right off the page and keeps you interested from the very first page to the last. I'm not even a huge fan of the Beatles but I couldn't put the book down because of all of the interesting facts and circumstances surrounding the creation of the groundbreaking Beatles cartoon series. Read more. Helpful. Mr. Axelrod has done a marvellous job of telling the behind the scenes tale of the making of The Beatles cartoons. The book is very well researched and sprinkled with illustrations. Five stars!

beatleToonsthe real story behindThe cartoon beatleS featuring Mitch Alexrod, an authority of everything Beatles and Tony Tragurdo host of including the Beatles Saturday morning cartoon series, which made a huge splash in the mid-60's, inspired the 1967 animated feature, Yellow Submarine, then disappeared into virtual obscurity for more than thirty years. The Beatles were actually first immortalized in animated glory a few years before climbing aboard that famous yellow submarine. They shared their music " but not their actual speaking voices " on a 30-minute Saturday morning cartoon that debuted on Sept. 25, 1965. The Fab Four hated the show at first, according to the book Beatletoons: The Real Story Behind the Cartoon Beatles , but later embraced its campy portrayal of the period when they still sported mop tops and suits. "I still get a blast out of watching the Beatles cartoons on TV," John Lennon said in 1972. Executive producer Al Brodax and producer George Dunning would also be involved in the production and direction of Yellow Submarine .
